"Wings" the greatest Achievement of Modern Times

A tensely interesting and highly instructive picturization of the military side of aeronautics is to be found in the new Paramount production, WINGS. Much has been said and written about war in the air; some of which was actual truth, and some of which were the penning of a highly imaginative author. But practice of all of which was very difficult for the layman to understand, much less picture in his own mind. But in WINGS he is able to see for himself just how war flies operate, alone, in pairs and in squadrons. Not only does he see how the airman combats his foe above the clouds, but also how he "strafes" the troops on the ground. To the man in the street and the post-war pilot, WINGS is pictorial history, and to the airman who were over there, it is living the old days over again.

This is the great epic of the air you have heard so much about. It carries its own musical director and is synchronized with special sound effects. Your only opportunity to hear and see this production this season. Will be at the Grand Theatre, Friday November 30th, afternoon and evening.

The Curling Rink

Mirror might well be proud of the fine new skating and curling rink which has just been completed. Its success has been due to the wholehearted response to the appeal made by the rink committee. The rink has been placed in the charge of Mr. Beck, who has already prepared a good sand-blast bottom in readiness for flooding when the weather permits. Final arrangements will be made when the committee hold their next meeting. Those who have not paid up their shares are asked to leave same at McNair's store as soon as possible, as the committee have a number of accounts to must, they will be glad to dispose of few more shares also. The building accounts will have to be settled very soon and the rink funds need to be replenished to do this so let's dig down, and bear in mind that "every little helps".

Attention is being drawn by Benjamin Lawton, Provincial Game Commissioner, to a number of clauses in the Game Act which are being wrongly interpreted in some localities. Mr. Lawton points out that nowhere in Alberta is there an open season for beaver and there is no open season for muskrat south of the North Saskatchewan river. Between that season for muskrat will be during March and April, while to the north of twp. 91 the open season extends from March 1 to May 15. The open season on Hungarian Partridge is during October and November. It may also be noted that big game hunters may bring out their trophies such as heads, hides, hoofs, lawfully killed by them, separate from the carcass.

Alberta's 1928 wheat crop is placed at 147,564,000 bushels, or an average of 32 bushels per acre from the acreage sown in the province, in the crop estimate issued last week.

Alberta has taken a commanding lead among the western provinces in the number of homestead entries for the nine months ending September 1928. The number of entries totalling 5,476.

Reward and Garnet, New Wheat Varieties, Now Holding Attention of Western Growers

Mr. L. H. Newman, Dominion Cerealist of the Experimental Farm, reported to the West recently from an extensive tour of Western Canada. During the trip practically every wheat growing area was visited. Newman states that the newer wheats, Reward and Garnet, are holding the attention of the western growers.

Some 407 farmers at this year testing Reward wheat. The variety is reported to have done well, though actual figures on yield, etc., have not yet been compiled. Mr. Newman stated that it had been impossible to determine anything definite with regard to this variety's rust resisting qualities because there was practically no rust in Manitoba and very little elsewhere. Conditions generally in the west Mr. Newman describes as distinctly above the average.

Particularly good was the report on Garnet wheat, one of the originations of the Experimental Farm. Writing on the subject of this remarkable wheat early this year, the Dominion Cerealist stated: "The history of Garnet wheat is almost unique in the results of scientific selection. It reveals a story of almost half a century of patient but determined effort, replete with disappointments and disappointments but rewarded ultimately by definite and indisputable gains."

In 1914 Garnet wheat was included in the regular variety test-plots at the Experimental Farm. In 1919 it was tested at the Experimental Farm in the Prairie Provinces. In 1920 the branch farms were able to secure 200 acres, from which was produced about 8,700 bushels.

In 1920, some 6,004 bushels of Garnet seed were offered to prairie farmers with a four-bushel bonus. 2,828 farmers, including 862 soldier settlers, secured two to four bushels of seed and this, together with the increasing test samples by two or three seed growers, made a grand total of some 11,000 bushels, or enough to seed 12,000 acres.

This year Garnet wheat was observed growing in all parts of the west. The section east of Prince Albert and north of Tisdale is particularly a favorite. It is an early maturing variety and has a high proportion of grain to straw. This season serious frost in Saskatchewan on August 22 damaged the immature wheat, but Garnet demonstrated its ability to mature before the frost. It usually ripens a day or two before Ruby, from 25 to twelve days ahead of Marquis, and three or four days before Reward. This variety has also behaved well under drought conditions.

In 1920 it was reported wheat never grew in the Peace River country. This year Garnet was being cut here on August 21. Crops were more advanced in the Peace River district than further west and some of the wheat's finest crops were seen there. Dr. J. H. Grisdale, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, and Mr. L. H. Newman, driving through the Peace River section on August 22, were able to identify 21 varieties of wheat, and of these 16 were Garnet, 7 Marquis, 3 Huron, 1 Purley Red, 1 Ruby and 1 Reward.

This indicates the way in which Garnet wheat is spreading in the west. As an early maturer and good yielder, it has to equal, and even exceed, the Experimental Farm branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture must be credited with an epoch-making contribution to Canadian agriculture.

Fort Churchill Harbor

Expropriation Proceedings Under Way to Secure Property

Preliminary arrangements for expropriation proceedings in regard to property at Fort Churchill are under way in Ottawa, Judge H. A. Robson of Winnipeg is acting for the Dominion government and the private owners are the descendants of William Benck, well known Winnipeg old-timer who was so ardent a believer in the Fort Churchill terminus to the Hudson Bay Railroad that he bought a large tract of territory at this point many years ago.

The Benck estate owns the narrow strip of land running between the harbor and the sea and it is along the inner shore of this peninsula that the harbor works are being constructed.

Hon. Chas. Dunning decided last year, when Churchill was selected as the port, that no private interests should be allowed to own land there at present, and expropriation proceedings accordingly were begun.

Wrong Impression of Canada

English Paper Gives Wide Account of Primitive Conditions

The woman's page editor of the Vancouver Province says: "There isn't a Canadian who at some time or other doesn't bemoan the fact that Canada is regarded as the Land of 'Beyond' by English people. Nearly every person has some amusing story to tell of an Englishman who came to Vancouver looking for bears or Indians, or who showed surprise at the discovery that this country is no way different from any other in the world. It is somewhat surprising to pick up a well-known English daily and to start reading headlines: 'A Bridge Party in West Vancouver; How an English Hostess Makes the Best of Her Primitive Home in the Wilds; And there follows a long account of a trip to the wilds of West Vancouver to a harmless bridge party where the guests regaled themselves on sandwiches, seated on packing boxes or beds."

"No one would argue about the truth of the affair. It may be so, but why a resident of British Columbia should undertake to invite guests to England stressing the primitive state of this part of Canada is not understandable. So, perhaps, our education needs to start at home before we try to impress our importance on other countries."

Shows How British Columbia Was Retained For Canada By Work of Early Pioneers

Wintering Bees Outside

Tells How Bees Are Successfully Wintered Out-of-Doors

At the Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa a large number of colonies of bees are successfully wintered out-of-doors each year. In his report for 1927, the Dominion Apiculturist tells how the bees are protected and fed. The cases used are four-column and two-column and single cases are also used. In packing, planer shavings are used of which three inches is placed under the hive, four or five inches about their sides, and six inches to eight inches on the top. Thirty-eight colonies were wintered on honey and forty-four on sugar syrup. Of those wintered on honey, thirty received shallow food chambers, and eight received deep ones. The bees were able to fly up until November, and after January 21. Towards the end of April when the colonies were examined it was found that those wintered on honey were in worse shape than those on the sugar syrup feed crop. Eight of the colonies died, of which six received honey and two received sugar syrup. At the end of May it was found that in the five colonies the number of frames covered by the bees averaged 4.5 per colony.

Britishers Who Stick

Ninety-Five Per Cent of Harvesters From Britain Have Made Good

Notwithstanding the concentrated efforts of a well-organized army, though blatant critics of Communism, ten thousand British miners came to the prairies, and an unexpected high percentage of them are remaining to meet the challenge that a Canadian "That challenge is to prove that Dominion is one that offers to the winner the best there is in life, exemplified by the fact that in the migrant of two decades ago is a senior member of the federal cabinet. Less than five per cent of the ten thousand miners have gone back, among these are some physically unqualified, others mentally disqualified, many come with the purpose of making the trip a vacation junket, many others came with communist instructions to foment trouble — and, 95 per cent remain.

It's an outstanding debt for the powers of communism who sought to bring credit upon the backs of black workers and upon the Canada that harbors all too many of their type with much too tolerant kindness." Canadian Press.

A Billion Bushel Crop

Prediction is Made That Canada Will Produce This Much Wheat Annually in Short Time

The 500,000,000 bushel wheat crop which Canada is harvesting this year leads the "Grain World," of Chicago, in a recent issue to predict that within a comparatively short time the wheat production of Canada will total 1,000,000,000 bushels annually.

If this happens, and the estimate is based on a consideration of the trend of wheat production during the last decade, it will entail a tremendous expense in railway building, elevator construction, sales of agricultural machinery, and general maintenance. The total wheat production of the world this year is estimated to be 2,000,000,000 bushels or 50,000,000 bushels more than last year.

With Russia still importing wheat, the Oriental demand growing, and with the growth in population, it is logical to assume that the wheat production in Canada will continue to increase.

Not Allowed to Forget

A fellow who does not forget go to the races attended a meeting one day and had his wallet stolen. This fact he was unwilling to report to his wife. The story of his misfortune got around and one day a business acquaintance said to him: "Have you heard anything about your wallet?" "Yes," replied the owner vividly, "I have, morning—noon—and night!"

The park-keeper found a tramp asleep on one of the seats. "Hi, you," he cried, shaking the man's shoulder. "I'm going to close the gates."

"All right," murmured the tramp sleepily. "Don't alarm them, will you?"

Had it not been for Sir George Simpson, governor of the Hudson's Bay Company, whose historic voyage to the Pacific coast a hundred years ago was celebrated recently the province of British Columbia would be in the possession of the United States, and Canada would have no outlet to the Pacific Ocean.

Perhaps this statement, made by Mr. Charles Vennet Sale, president governor of the Company of Adventurers, did more to impress on the minds of those gathered at Fort St. James, B.C., for the centenary of the importance of the exploits of the man who has been called the Cecil Rhodes of Canada. The romance of a century ago was brought vividly before the eyes in a pageant which resurrected Simpson's journeying across the wide stretches that ultimately became the Dominion, but after all the living picture of the governor and his retinue arriving at the fort could not more vividly indicate the far-reaching effect Simpson's activities were to have in the history of North America.

"Fort St. James in those days," said Governor Sale, "was the outpost of an empire; the visible sign of British occupation, a centre of government, and after all the claims of Spain to all the coast south of the Russian possessions, of Spain's waving her claims in favor of the United States."

"Our American neighbors," he said, "were disposed to believe that this was a strait to all the south of the Russian possessions. And so it might have been but for the fur trade and for such men as Alexander Mackenzie, Simon Fraser, John Stuart and Sir George Simpson."

"It was in the struggle between the Northwest and the Southwest, American interest for the country west of the Rocky Mountains that Simon Fraser founded Fort St. James in 1806. The Astorians came and vanished and in 1821 the United States proclaimed her right to the Pacific Coast and Sir George Simpson became the Hudson's Bay Company governor. Three years later, Simpson, to put the affairs of the Columbia district in shape and save the coast from the United States and Russia, crossed the country from Fort Pelly, making the journey in 28 days, 20 days less than any previous record, and established the company's headquarters in such a way as to mark the limits of what he thought should be British territory on the north and south."

Oriental Use Old Papers

Manufacturers of Fireworks and Novelty Items Indispensable

Old newspapers may be a problem to you, but in China and Japan they are practically indispensable. Reports to the U.S. Shipping Board show that old newspapers constitute a large share of the ship's cargoes. Recently Oriental ports have seen recently newspapers shipped from Los Angeles alone weighed 5,000,000 pounds.

Oriental firecracker and novelty manufacturers use the papers in their products. Total shipments for 1927 to their country amounted to 7,000,000 pounds, valued at $685,423.

Compulsory Marking of Eggs

Buyers in England Would Know Product Was Canadian.

In consideration of the fact that there is apparently a growing demand in the British Isles for Canadian importations of agricultural products—especially butter and eggs, the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries of the United Kingdom has now recommended through the committee appointed to deal with such work, that an order in council should be made prohibiting the sale of eggs in foreign countries for export to England unless they are marked.

The regulations as to marking are that every egg shall be marked indelibly in ink in letters at least one-sixteenth of an inch high. Every egg shall bear this mark—the name of the country from which the eggs are to be shipped. This information was received from a bulletin issued by the Federal Bureau Department of Agriculture.

Further this report states, the motive for such an action is to assure the buyers of the Old Land that they are getting products which have been produced in the United Kingdom. This recommendation is a good one for this trade, and in view of the fact that the Dominion government have recently taken steps to make such restrictions as will inevitably raise the standard of the Canadian product, there is every likelihood of there being a huge increase in the trade in agricultural products in the near future.

This increased interest on the part of the consumers should be appreciated by Canadians, this report intimates, in view of the fact that up to date the exports of such commodities have been rather low as compared with other countries in the Empire or without.

This action was taken by the Empire Marketing Board to encourage the egg consumers of the Mother Country to buy Canadian products, and that this idea of marking them with indelible ink so that the name of the country would not be destroyed even after the egg was broken, would assist them in their natural desire to patronize Empire products," quoting this report further figures showing the export of eggs to the United Kingdom for July this year show the following results: Dressed quail was exported to the value of $2,000; butter to the amount of 5,483 cwt.; and eggs to the value of $47,105, as compared with a total importation value of eggs to the United Kingdom of $5,825,970.

Fish From Northern Lakes

Thousands of Pounds Shipped From Alberta to Eastern Cities.

The map of Canada is being rolled back so far as the economic handling of fish from the northern lakes is concerned, according to the progress made in the shipment of Lake Athabasca trout and whitefish to such markets as Chicago, New York and Toronto, says the Financial News. The fishing being carried on by two companies at Lake Athabasca, in Alberta, constitutes the most northern commercial operation in Canada, the extent of which is indicated by R. T. Todd, Federal Inspector of Fisheries, who on his recent return from an inspection trip stated that 62,000 pounds of trout and 4,000 pounds of whitefish were taken from the lake in the first three days of the summer fishing season.

First Grain Shipment to Spain

The first shipment of wheat from Montreal to Spain left the other day 201,157 bushels. Wheat shipments to foreign countries last year amounted to 118,277,726 bushels from Montreal, but not a single bushel was exported to Spain among the seven foreign countries to which grain was consigned. This is said to be the first shipment of grain ever made to Spain.

Canada Has Extinct Volcano

Geologists Working in B. C. Say Eruption Occurred 100 Years Ago. Less than 500 years ago Canada possessed an active volcano, in the opinion of explorers who have been studying the mountains north of Alton, in the northeastern section of British Columbia.

The volcano, according to authorities, is now definitely dead and there is now no danger of further eruption. There were apparently two pronounced eruptions which have left their traces and they were separated by a period long enough to allow the lava to cool. The first eruption blew out a crater about 400 yards in diameter. After a period of quiescence sufficiently long to form a hard and level floor in the crater there was a second eruption which formed a cone or scoria of cinders, within the original crater, 300 feet long with a crater 200 feet deep. It was from the base of this cone that the lava now proceeded.

From the volcano the lava flowed down a creek valley in a stream 300 yards wide until it entered the valley of the Teasay River. Crossing this river to the west side, it completely dammed the stream, forming or enlarging a lake nearby. The lava here turned north and continued down the valley of the Teasay in a stream 2,000 feet wide, as far as the Teasay river. By the time it reached the lake the lava had lost much of its fluidity and the great river was shut dammed, although the lava spread out down the left bank for six miles. It was through this lava that the volcano said that the last eruption was about 100 years ago, but geologists discovered three 170 years old growths on the edge of the lava. They place the time of the eruption at about 300 years ago.

Cost of Raising Dairy Heifers

An accurate record of the cost of raising dairy heifers was kept at the Fredericton, New Brunswick, Experimental Station. One lot of three heifers including one Ayrshire, one Jersey and one Guernsey, fed together from birth until they were one year old. They were fed on whole milk until four to six weeks old and then gradually changed to skim milk. When the calves were three months old they received in addition to the skim milk, one part of flax seed and four parts oat meal cooked and made into a porridge. The cost of feeding was the first European country to offer wholesale asylum to the millions of the Russian nobility when they poured across their borders ahead of the Bolshevik terror. France offered these gently born and reared people work, and they accepted it eagerly. Some 300,000 annually established themselves in France, about one-fifth of these in Paris.

Canadian Cattle for Australia

Shipment of Purebred Stock to be Sent from Brandon, Man.

The Australian government has just completed a deal for eighteen foundation heifers and two bulls from J. D. McGregor and Sons, the well-known Aberdeen Angus breeders of Brandon. The animals will be selected from the Mr. McGregor's Glenora herd by the head herdsman of the Australian government and shipped by the Canadian Pacific Railway by way of Vancouver. This shipment, apart from some purchased direct from the Orient from British Columbia, is said to be the first exportation of purebred cattle from Canada overseas.

Conditions Have Changed

The pioneer who came to Canada 100 years ago, cut all his bridges behind him. He spent his last cent to get here, hundreds of miles of forest and streams divided him from the coast and there was a six weeks ocean voyage after that. The man who went out west to work, to work, thirty, forty, fifty years and some day he might revisit his homeland at his own expense.

Scientist Denounces War

Always Leaves Something To Be Settled, Says Sir Oliver Lodge

Sir Oliver Lodge's recent discourse on war created considerable attention throughout England due to the scientist's strong language. "War is ugly, disgraceful, dirty, objectionable business," he said in a presidential address to the Federation of Southern Counties Brotherhood.

"We ought to be ashamed of it. Digging ourselves into the mud and pretending to be civilized people. Crowing about under the water and sinking each other's vessels is an occupation for gentlemen."

"Disputes must be taken to some body that settles them. War does not settle anything, but leaves something to be settled."

Russian Colony in Paris

Refugees Fleeing From Bolsheviks Accepted Work in France

The Russian revolution added to Paris a foreign colony which now contributes more to the favor of the city than any other alien group. France was the first European country to offer wholesale asylum to the millions of the Russian nobility when they poured across their borders ahead of the Bolshevik terror. France offered these gently born and reared people work, and they accepted it eagerly. Some 300,000 annually established themselves in France, about one-fifth of these in Paris.

Prospector Taking Trip For First Time in Thirty-Three Years

Hector Morrison, from the silver camp at Keno, Yukon Territory, is bound for the outside world for the first time in a generation.

Morrison has relatives back in Woodstock, Ont., and many of these he has not seen since the beginning of the present century. Others have been born and grown up since he went away in the spring of 1885 to seek his fortune in the northland.

Morrison was there for the first gold stampede and in 1886 he camped on the site of Dawson, which was to become the hub of the mining universe. Since then he has lived continuously in the Yukon, following placer mining in the Dawson district until 1918, when he went to Keno and staked a quartz claim the following year.

"Yes, I've enough of the world's goods to keep me from worrying," admitted Morrison, who cleaned up a fortune when he sold his holding to the "Treadwell Yukon Limited." "I never feel rich enough for that. Money can't always buy happiness and I'll be happy only in the north," six months of civilization, Morrison thinks, will be enough. Then he'll hit the northern trail again.

No Waste in China

People Are Extremely Careful and Make Things Last Indefinitely

As a nation we are rather inclined to be unimpressed of waste. The Chinese are just the reverse. They waste nothing, and seem to have the knack of making household ware, for instance, last indefinitely. As a result of this care for economy crowds of tinkers, cobblers, and menders of all kinds are able to earn enough money to supply their few needs.

A mender of china were is called Pou Kou, and through the streets he wanders in his baggy-lucky way, seeking work. Across his bare shoulders is suspended a box of tools at the end of a long bamboo pole, and as he goes he cries out his calling in shrill accents.

Every now and then a door opens and the owner of the house gives the Pou Kou some dishes or other household crockery to mend. A look of content spreads over his face, for he depends largely on his customers for his morning and evening bowls of rice, which to him mean, all the difference between happiness and the reverse.

He sits down then and there, quite oblivious of the fierce sun that beats down upon him while he performs his task.

Planning Against Air Attacks

Considering Means to Counteract Effect of Gas Bombs in London

The "new measures" counteracted the effect of deadly gas-bombs dropped by aeroplanes on London in possible future wars are being considered, but such expedients as are suggested would cost enormous sums and would provide only a small measure of protection against such a destructive force as could be launched, judging by the recent mock air attack that London experienced.

Emergency supplies of gas masks for every man, woman and child would be one measure of safety. Another would be the installation at every air-idiot of the ordinary house of "seals" of chemical antiseptics, which would render each house gas-proof. A third precaution is the training of special gas squads, men wearing gas proof clothing and masks and equipped with a spraying mechanism to lay down neutralizing gas clouds in the streets.

And the provision of "community" dugouts suggested by subsidizing motor companies to build four- and five-story garages underground on the condition that these could be used as bomb-proof shelters in case of war for large numbers of people.

The verdict on the giant mock attack causes many gloomy predictions. It is estimated that in a warfare at least 500 tons of bombs would have been successfully launched on London and would have caused raiding formations suffered heavy losses from anti-aircraft fire and the defending fighters, more than half the "enemy" bombs evaded the defence. The time factor is stressed by those who figure that at least 11 such wars in progress before the enemy planes had been in sight of London for more than an hour.

Devoting Time to Writing

Sir Canon Doyle Giving Up Lectures on Spiritualism

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, noted English spiritualist and writer of Sherlock Holmes, has abandoned his vigorous missionary campaign in favour of spiritualism.

The steadily increasing strain which the growing demands upon his time for lectures has brought during the past few years has resulted in the partial retirement from the world of occultism, he says.

Sir Arthur's retirement was foreshadowed in the international Psychic Gazette, and he confirmed the report declaring he desired to devote more time to writing.

"My resumption of writing on a larger scale, however, does not mean the reconstruction of Sherlock Holmes," he said.

"I am simply abandoning my lecturing and clutch work due to the demands upon my time. It must not be taken to indicate that I have lost interest in spiritualism."

Sir Arthur will sail October 25 for South Africa, the only English-speaking section of the world where he has not yet lectured, and will give a series of talks there—"to complete his life's work," he said.

First Show Were "Straitights"

The "made in Canada" shoe first appeared in 1897. For several years Canadian-made shoes were in the form of "straitights" and it was not until 1918 left and rights were introduced into Canada's shoe industry. As late as 1900 "straitights" were still manufactured in Canada.

An Ancient Landmark makes way for Progress

History on these western prairies has been lived within the past fifty years. Many a man and woman, in the provinces of Saskatchewan and Alberta, remember the day when the first shingling house was built, when the brick arrived for the first public building.

There was recently brought to the attention of the Canadian Pacific officials an old building at Canora, Alberta. It was rapidly falling to pieces, and the question arose as to the manner in which it should be destroyed. Quizzes were made but no money reached back to the day when the log section had not flanked the main line of the railway at that point. Finally an old gentleman, reminding around the warm stone at Canora Station, told a yarn concerning the day, the very cold day, on which he went into the section house and lighted his pipe. Suddenly there was a blaze, and the smell of gas led to one corner of the room, under which was found a natural gas hole. The fire was extinguished and the news of the discovery noted abroad, then the ancients in the vicinity began to brighten and it was learned that the log for the section house had been brought on flat cars from Castle Mountain near Banff. They had there formed a shack in the construction days of the railway. This was more than thirty-five years ago, and when the building was completed it was, probably, with the exception of police stations, the first public building between Calgary and Winnipeg. It will now go the way of all vegetables, for its ash will enrich the earth on the spot where the logs so long did their duty in serving their day and generation. The new section house has already been constructed but its life, it is safe to say, will not be so long as its predecessor.

Fresh from his exercises and shower, his cheeks red, his dark eyes shining with the clear glow of health, his step springy and firm, Donald was a picture of rugged health and strength. But for all this apparent outward brightness, inwardly he felt rebellious. Douglas's invitation had brought a great longing for the comforts of his past life. Why should he assume the role of a pugilist to eke out an existence? Why wear shabby clothes and even know the pangs of hunger? He had but to wire his father that he was destitute and plenty of money would be forthcoming.

A big steak at "Old Joe's" furnished him a hearty meal. As he selected the money from his meagre supply of cash to pay his check, the old bent his grizzled head forward. "Don't go hungry; come in any time,"

"Thanks, Joe," Donald was in a dark mood. He heard the sound of heavy laughter coming from a saloon on the corner. There behind those swinging doors was momentary recess from worldly cares. He stood in the door of the restaurant and looked across the street at the twin peaks, known as the "Lions," which guard the entrance to Vancouver's harbor. The sun was setting in a mass of fleecy clouds; the clouds became a luminous gaze, and a golden splendor spread over the water. The mountains were suffused in a faint, white, the snow-fields took on a violet stain of rose. Donald's face glowed as he watched the scene.

"Some country!" he breathed. He turned to catch a friendly smile from old Joe as he worked over his rage. "And some people!" he added fervently.

Once more he turned to the mountains. The glow had vanished and the Lions stood in lead relief against the clear sky. The massive snow-capped peaks seemed to impart a new strength to his being. "I'll not quit. I'm going to make good," he said grimly.

CHAPTER III.

While on his daily run round Stanley Park the next afternoon Donald was attracted by a horse and rider standing on Prospect. The rider was interested in a huge white liner plowing her way through the Narrows, backing a head tide. The horse, a noble animal with full mane and tail, was restive, rearing and prancing in his eagerness to be off.

When Donald lifted his eyes to the rider he saw a beautiful, haughty face with skin of a milky whiteness, a heavy mass of dark brown hair neatly coiffed under a wide riding hat, and a pair of wonderful brown eyes that suddenly grew cold.

A shower of dirt and pebbles stung

leave thy woody bowler, Sir Don, the goddess awaits thee."

Reaching inwardly, Donald tried to appear dignified as he stepped to the road, but the attempt was a dismal failure. How could one approach anything like dignity when dressed in a pair of running trunks, a torn and frayed jersey, socks turned down over a pair of dirty tennis shoes, and without hat or coat? All this added to the fact that he faced a battery of two big brown eyes, who thought him a masher. The greatest actor in the world would fail to register dignity under such conditions. He had a confused remembrance of a jumble of words that went for a formal introduction. He felt his face hot, and knew he was blushing furiously, which did not add to his composure.

The girl looked down curiously, but not without interest, at the embarrassed young man. Donald tried to glance up at the face above him. The deep brown eyes regarding him held just a trace of humor. Donald finally mustered courage to glance up at the face above him. The deep brown eyes regarding him held just a trace of humor. The great actor in the world would fail to register dignity under such conditions. He had a confused remembrance of a jumble of words that went for a formal introduction. He felt his face hot, and knew he was blushing furiously, which did not add to his composure.

"It is a pleasure to meet you even under such inconspicuous circumstances," stammered Donald. He turned to glance at the grinning face of his acquaintance. "I would suggest, Miss Rennie, that you have a doctor waiting at your home, as I intend to commit mayhem on the person of your brother as soon as you have gone."

Recipes For This Week

Orange Buns

Soak orange peels three days in cold water changing the water daily; then put in hot water, and boil until soft. Drain, wipe dry with cheesecloth, chop fine, and measure. Take an equal amount of sugar, and for each one-third of a cup of sugar add two tablespoons each of molasses and butter, and boil until it will spin a thread, then add the chopped peel, boil about five minutes, cool, put on a board, sprinkle with granulated sugar, and shape into small balls. These may be rolled in coarse sugar, or dipped in dry or wet sugar.

"I told you — a Greek goddess, mother," Donald's friend, "Your what?" he exploded.

"Oh, I forgot! Poor fellow!" said Douglas, softly, as his face assumed a mournful expression. "I'll certainly have to pull my punches hereafter." He leaned toward Donald and placed his lips close to his ear.

"I'll tell you," he said slowly, "Does the old bean grin at it?"

"Cut the comedy," growled Donald as he jerked Douglas to the side of the road out of sight of the equestrienne. "Good heavens! Your sister!" he growled, and she thinks I am a masher."

"Why should she think that of you?" Donald told her of yesterday's occurrence.

"This is great!" chuckled Douglas. "Come and meet my sister, Donald. I'll tell her that you can't help flirting, and that will fix things up all right. I'll call her. He grinned feebly.

"Don't you dare!" Donald warned.

Douglas avoided Donald's wild clutch near to the centre of the road and waved his arm.

"Oh, Janet," he shouted, Donald shook an angry fist at his tormentor and sprang to the side of the tree. There was a thud of hoofs, a spattering of gravel, and the sound of creaking leather.

"What in the world are you doing here in that dress, Doug?" asked Janet.

"Janet," said her brother in a low, menacing voice, "I've got the fellow that tried to flirt with you yesterday; he's here." He pointed to the bush.

"The poor fellow is a confirmed flirt," Janet said in his worst form. I beg of you, Sister, be lenient, be merciful. He thinks you are a Greek goddess. He tapped his forehead significantly.

Donald cursed the irrepressible young scoundrel of humor. If he could have reached the hospital at that moment he would have pitched him into the Inlet without compunction.

Janet eyed her brother with disapproval. "What are you talking about, Doug? Have you taken leave of your senses entirely?"

"I will bring forth the crying knight for you to consume," rejoined her brother, bowing low in exaggerated deference. "Ho!" he shouted,

Inspiration From Commonplace Things

Door-Knocker Gave Beethoven Idea for Glorious Concerto

To an ordinary mind it would be scarcely seen possible that much music could be got out of a door-knocker. Yet it was this sound which is said to have inspired Beethoven's glorious violin concerto in D. As the musician by a stroke of genius, shaping the concerto in his mind, his musings were interrupted by a belated neighbor who was endeavoring to arouse his housekeeper and get her to come down and let him in. Beethoven heard the persistent knocking for admission four slow deliberate knocks at a time. The constant repetition gave the composer the idea he sought and those four knocks are heard all through the opening movement of the concerto, which begins with four unaccompanied r's on the drum—seemingly as unimpassioned and unimpassioned as opening phrase as one could imagine.

In commenting upon the circumstance that Sir George Grove has said "those four notes were Beethoven's whole bulk of the old Tensare's Wordworth—commence with themselves but transmuted by the fire of genius into an imperishable monument."

Sample of Work on Iron Ferrule Discovered in Ancient City

A method of soldering two pieces of iron together with copper was known to Roman artisans in England nearly two thousand years ago. This is shown by a deep iron ferrule like a modern scuttle ring unearthed during excavations of the Roman city of Uricolium, located in the river Severn and destroyed about A.D. 380.

TOOTH TURNS BLACK

Your white teeth turns perhaps excited the admiration of your friends and your pride in them is fairly pardonable.

But one day a tooth that you had been intending to have "fixed" ceased to bother you until by and by you noted with some little alarm that this tooth was quite dark in contrast to its fellows.

Or, perhaps, your dentist because of your neglect found it necessary to remove the pulp from a tooth, following which operation you found with some dismay that it had changed color, and noticeably so.

Now, what has caused it? Contrary to your idea, possibly, a tooth gets its shade, not from the outer enamel covering, which is almost colorless, but from the array of colors in the underlying body of dentine.

As a sequence to pulp death and decomposition, we have a disintegration of the blood elements with the production of pigments or color compounds. These permeate the dentinal structure through the many minute tubuli and are reflected through the almost transparent enamel, giving the tooth its shade; this is the principal source of discoloration.

A less frequent cause is from the use of remedial agents employed in tooth treatments, many of which have the property of staining the dental substance.

Now, unfortunately, as you can see, the staining that you may do of no avail—the historic spot of "Mache" —it will not "out."

However, your dentist by employing bleaching agents within the tooth cavity can with fair success restore the shade. If the discoloration has not remained too long.

British Harvesters On Return To England Speak Well Of Canada

London.—British harvesters who returned to Great Britain recently leading at Liverpool, the Dominion of Canada, strikingly refused comments concerning conditions in Canada brought back by other harvesters. There were many harvesters from the Dominion who had been quite successful in the Dominion.

The majority of the men returning recently said they had found ready employment in Canada at wages of from three to four dollars a day. Some of them were able to pay their passage home at the special rate of $60.

One harvester from Wigan, after paying his passage home had $65 in his possession.

A striking example of the kindness shown many of the harvesters by Canadian farmers was given by a young Britisher named Hore. Hore said he was taken to a white working in the fields and the farmer and his wife not only took care of him during his illness but paid for his three days at the rate of $3 a day.

The harvesters who returned recently were very kind in their relations in Canada of which they termed the "Communist section." This section, they stated, wrecked the scheme as soon as the harvesters landed in Canada. Their influence had been so bad that in many instances Canadian farmers, before the harvesters came, asked whether they were Communists.

Hon. W. D. Euler Issues Denial of Charge Against His Department

Ottawa.—Hon. W. D. Euler, minister of national revenue, has issued a lengthy statement dealing in detail with a certain charge reported to have been made by H. H. Pooley, attorney-general of British Columbia against the department which Mr. Euler administers.

Mr. Euler declares that his department is attempting in all its activities to co-operate with the provinces in the enforcement of their liquor laws and that not in a single instance have licenses for breweries or distilleries been granted when prohibited. The minister deals specifically with the shipment of a cathartid of whisky from the distiller of Quebec and words to which, according to news reports, Mr. Pooley made special mention.

"The charge that the Dominion Government is deliberately violating its own law and the benefit of liquor interests is utterly untrue," Mr. Euler declares. "Such a statement would show a poor lack of knowledge of the true situation and a quite apparent disinclination to accept our offer of cooperation. I cannot believe that Hon. Mr. Pooley made such a charge."

The minister suggested that if the British Columbia attorney-general had any fault to find with the Department of National Revenue it would have been fair for him to address his criticisms to the department rather than to issue statements in the press.

General Allenby In New York

British Hero Honored By Official Salute Of 17 Guns

New York.—Field Marshal Sir Edmund H. H. Allenby, so-called last crusader, who conquered the Turks in Palestine and Egypt for the British, was welcomed on his arrival here for the American Legion convention to be held soon in San Antonio.

Arriving on the liner Majestic with Lady Allenby, General Allenby received an official salute of 17 guns from the army reservation on Governor Island, who captured the Turkish Macon carried him from the liner to the battery at the Southern tip of Manhattan Island.

The British hero spoke of the growing tendency toward "open display" among nations but saw no sign for great disarmament at present.

"I do not believe there is anyone in the world who does not want peace if they can get it," he said.

"However, one has to be ready for war, as you do not keep burglars out by leaving the door unlocked."

Killed By High Power Wire

Man, Then Dead

Winnipeg, Man.—Harvesters returning to eastern Canada are taking home with them more money than is usually the case. This is due to the exceptionally fine weather which has favored the operations and to the prolonged season of harvesting because of the unusually heavy crop.

Portunum, County Galway, Irish Free State.—Portunum Castle where elaborate arrangements were made for the approaching visit of the owner, Viscount Lascelles and his wife, Princess Mary, was hurried to the ground.

Civie guards and soldiers made a futile effort to bring the blaze under control. The main portions of the Portunum Castle were burned in 1927, and the recent fire attacked the remaining parts of the castle and the outlying buildings.

During the night 25 tons of hay on another estate where Viscount Levegh was planning to visit and were turned. It is stated the visit of the couple to Portunum may be postponed.

Would Make Travelling In Empire Easier

Plan To Abolish Passports From One Part To Another

Toronto, Ont.—A campaign for the abolition of the requirements of the British Government that British-born travellers going from one part of the British Empire to another should possess a passport is being conducted by the Canadian Steamship and Tourist Agents' Association. The association declared recently.

Members of the Association are confident that, in this move, they have the sympathy of the travelling public, who there to abide by "unnecessary trouble." They will endeavor to bring to bear upon the British Government, through the Department of External Affairs, sufficiently strong evidence to have this class of passport eliminated.

Harvesters Have Good Year

Men Returning East With More Money Than Usual

Winnipeg, Man.—Harvesters returning to eastern Canada are taking home with them more money than is usually the case. This is due to the exceptionally fine weather which has favored the operations and to the prolonged season of harvesting because of the unusually heavy crop.

The men returning by tens and dozens, some to eastern Canada and some to Great Britain, are well satisfied with the money they have made. Canadian National officials said recently that the several hundred men returning to the Dominion to become permanent citizens of the West.

To Open Office In Peru

Ottawa.—G. R. Stevens, Canadian Trade Commissioner in South Africa, has arrived in Lima on a trade mission, where he will open a new office with jurisdiction over Peru, Bolivia and Ecuador. Prior to his departure he had expressed the hope that Stevens will visit manufacturing centers of Canada in connection with Canadian exports to his former territory.

Empire Party Was Well Pleased With Reception In Canada

Sydney, N.S.—Delegates of the Empire Parliamentary Association have made their farewell to Canada. "We have been treated like princes. We have been received like old friends," exclaimed Viscount Peel, chairman of the delegation, addressing a final dinner given by the Canadian club and the other Dominion and his words of farewell and gratitude were added those of representatives from every parliament in the Empire.

In their journeyings through Canada, Lord Peel felt, members of the Empire delegation had been able to remove misconceptions. It had been thought in some quarters apparently that the Empire marketing board was an instrument for pushing British goods in Empire markets. In reality it was designed to push home goods into the British market and the cost fell on the British taxpayer. It had been thought, in some quarters, that the unemployment insurance, mislabeled the able, was demoralizing character. In reality the employee paid his share to a fund which was entitled as of right to his insurance payment when the cause of unemployment fell upon him.

"We have heard it suggested," Lord Peel added, "that we desire to lead Canada with inefficient unemployment."

"I regulate with all my force this infamous suggestion, but there is, I am convinced, great opportunities in Canada, with good organization, for substantial numbers of able and willing workers from our country who will form a fine type of Canadian citizens. We further discussed the opportunities for the extended investment of capital from Great Britain and the other Dominions and our speakers have laid stress on the necessity for accurate information in this regard. We are not disappointed to the invasion."
